This drawing represents two early feminists of Washington! Pictured is Fay Fuller, who in 1890 became the first non-indigenous woman to summit Mt. Rainier. Planting a Votes for Women pennant at the summit however, was accomplished 20 years later by Dr. Cora Eaton Smith who climbed the great mountain as a publicity tactic during the 1909 Alaska Yukon Exposition. Fay helped to form the Washington Alpine Club in 1891, the Tacoma Alpine Club in 1893 and the Mazamas climbing club in 1894. Cora was a founding member of The Mountaineers in 1906, and went on to summit all six of Washington’s major mountains.
